

Central Queensland Intermodal Logistics Hub

Transport and logistics is an important industry sector for Central Queensland's economy, playing a vital role in the success of local businesses including food and retail. Development of an intermodal logistics hub in Central Queensland will provide many benefits and opportunities.

What is an intermodal logistics hub?

- A facility where non-bulk freight is transferred between different modes of transport i.e. from ship to road to rail.
- It would serve as a critical economic function for our region—allowing logistics, manufacturing and distribution companies to centralise their national warehousing and distribution operations.
- The logistics industry represents one of the key growth opportunities for Central Queensland.

Why is Central Queensland a great location for the 'hub'?

- Central Queensland is centrally located on the north-south axis between Brisbane/Townsville and at the start of road and rail corridors to the central west.
- The position is ideal for servicing the Surat, Galilee and Bowen Basins, as well as heavy manufacturing, agriculture and other key industries.
- We have well-established heavy transport facilities already operating in the region: port; rail; road; air.
- Abundant land, water and power resources.

What benefits will the facility bring to Central Queensland?

For the general community it will:

- Create new job opportunities.
- Improve delivery times on goods purchased.

For business and industry it will:

- Create efficiencies in transportation of inward and outbound freight—thereby saving operators money.
- Provide a better integration of infrastructure, making the job easier!
- Reduce transportation costs through economies of scale.
- Increase reliability and capacity to deliver.
- Improve delivery service and quality.
- Provide global competitive advantages for new business with access to international markets via the extensive transport network.

For the region it will:

- Provide major investment opportunities for businesses wanting to be a part of this important infrastructure development.
- Offer an opportunity to broaden and strengthen our economic activity.
- Attract new industries.

For more information and to be a part of this exciting opportunity contact info@cqilh.com